

METHODOLOGY

This year's Canadian University Report reflects the opinion of more than 43,400 current undergraduate students. The results are derived from answers to more than 100 questions. The number of universities featured this year has grown to 55.

A number of strict controls were built into the process to help ensure that those included in the sample represent Canadian undergraduates. Further, the data were weighted to a 60/40 female to male gender split to resemble the actual undergraduate student population studying at Canadian universities. A mean score for each university is calculated for each question, based on the responses of students who attend that school. Universities are assigned a letter grade that matches their mean scores—out of a maximum of 5.0—for each variable. The letter grading is based on the following grid:

- A+ = 4.6 and above
- A = 4.4
- A- = 4.2
- B+ = 4.0
- B = 3.8
- B- = 3.6
- C+ = 3.4
- C = 3.2
- C- = 3.0
- D = Less than 3.0

This approach to grading was developed from analyzing the distribution of mean scores from an index variable, developed from an aggregate score based on each of the measurements of satisfaction about the university experience examined in the survey. The grid was then applied to the mean score of responses received from each university, for each variable, and grades were assigned based on the mean score received. Because sample sizes are significantly smaller when comparing one university to another, there may not be statistically significant differences separating universities that receive different letter grades, although their mean scores are different. NOTE: Slightly fewer responses than our minimum sampling requirement were received this year for the universities of Windsor, Montreal, Dalhousie and Memorial. In order to provide our readers with survey information for these four schools, our charts show their 2007 results.
